

DEATH FOLLOWS A PARALYSIS STROKE

HOWARD ECKELS, WELL-KNOWN VENERABLE MAN OF KNIGHTSVILLE, PASSES AWAY SUNDAY AFTERNOON—WAS BORN IN GREENCASTLE—BODY WILL BE BROUGHT HERE FOR BURIAL.

SON OF FEDERAL JUDGE

Esquire Howard Eckels, age 74 years, 10 months and 23 days, passed away at his home in Knightstown at 2 o'clock on Sunday afternoon of paralysis. Mr. Eckels had rallied from previous attacks of paralysis, but after the last attack Thursday he gradually grew weaker until life passed from his body.

Mr. Eckels was one of the best known citizens of Knightstown. He was born in Greencastle, Sept. 17, 1839, and was the son of Delana Eckels, who was judge of the circuit court including Clay, Putnam, Owen and possibly several other counties in pioneer days of this section. He was made a federal judge and heard the famous cases of the Mormons charged with polygamy.

The deceased man was a member of the Christian Church. He is survived by the widow, Anna, one son, Dennis, of Knightstown, and an adopted son, Frank, of Bloomington.

There were short funeral services at the residence at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The body was brought to Greencastle on the 2:18 o'clock train on the Vandalia for burial in Forest Hill cemetery.

Walter S. Buckingham, a graduate of the university with the class of 1913, and at present a member of the faculty of the Delphi high school, is a visitor in the city.

NEGRO HAS EVADED EFFORTS OF POSSE TO CAPTURE HIM.

A telephone message today from the sheriff of Hendricks County stated that the negro wanted for an assault on two women who reside at Hadley on Sunday night had so far evaded the posse who located him near Delmar Monday afternoon.

The attack was made early Monday. The man removed a screen from a window and entered the room in which Mrs. Shelton and her sister were sleeping. Mrs. Shelton is 78 years old and Mrs. Stewart 63.

When Mrs. Stewart was attacked she screamed and he then struck her with a sharp instrument, inflicting two scalp wounds and causing her to faint. Her assailant then pulled her from the bed and attacked Mrs. Stewart. When she screamed the miscreant left the house.

The assault was reported to the authorities and a posse of men took up the trail. It was thought several times that the man was surrounded, but each time he made his escape.

Mrs. Shelton recovered consciousness later, but is said to be quite ill from the shock. No reason for the assault could be given as the man made no attempt to take anything from the house.

At about 1 o'clock Monday afternoon the negro was located at the coal chute near Delmar by the posse. The negro ran north, leaving his shoes and coat behind. Although several shots were fired he managed to get away. It is believed that at least one of the shots hit him. Search for the negro still continues as it is believed that he is in hiding near Delmar. It is believed that the negro would have been lynched had he been caught by the posse Monday afternoon.

The condition of Mrs. Jessie Allee Byrd is reported to be gradually improving, and it is believed that she will be able to be out in a few weeks.

Thomas Wright and daughters, Miss Violet and Miss Hazel, of Covington, Ky., who have been here the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Matthews and family, have returned to their home. They drove to Greencastle in their automobile.

CORN IS SAVED FROM FAILURE

GROWERS FROM PRACTICALLY ALL PARTS OF COUNTY SAY THAT PUTNAM WILL PRODUCE AT LEAST AN AVERAGE YIELD AS RESULT OF RECENT RAINS—SOME FIELDS WILL BE BENEFITED BUT LITTLE.

SOME PARTS ARE SLIGHTED

With the exception of fields that were planted extremely early or crops in bottom or sandy soil, practically all of the corn of Putnam County has been saved by the recent rains from the failure that was predicted for it, according to the expressed belief of several farmers who were in the city today. One man, who has been a farmer for many years and a close observer of this particular grain for twenty years, stated that his estimate of the increased yield that will result from the rains would be twenty-five per cent.

It was admitted by practically all of the growers interviewed, however, that some fields would be benefited but little. The crops that were planted extremely early, and especially those in bottom or sandy ground, had in many cases reached the stage where rain could do little good. These fields appear to be few, however, and a general spirit of optimism prevails as the result. Some farmers even predict that the advantage will be more than twenty-five per cent, while others are less conservative, but the general opinion appears to be that Putnam will produce an average yield this year.

Some parts of the county have had the advantage of more rainfall than others. A report from the north part of the county is that growers there did not get the long looked for rain until Monday. The rainfall of Monday and Monday night was more general than any that had gone before, however, and as far as can be learned there are but few parts of the county that have not received enough moisture to last at least for several days.

DIVORCED WIFE RUNS AWAY WITH HER LITTLE SON

MRS. EDITH SMALLEY HASPEL COMES TO GREENCASTLE AND, TELLING GRANDMOTHER THAT SHE WANTS TO TAKE LAD TO TOWN TO BUY HIM A PRESENT, TAKES HIM TO TERRE HAUTE.

JUDGE IS APPEALED TO

Mrs. Edith Smalley Haspel, off Terre Haute, divorced wife of Charley Haspel, formerly of this city, came to Greencastle Monday and went to the home of Mr. Haspel's mother, Mrs. Freda Haspel, she told Mrs. Haspel that she had come to spend the day with her son, who has been with its grandmother since the divorce and custody of the children were granted to Mr. Haspel.

After visiting the grandmother and the boy for some time, she asked if she could not take the little boy down town to buy him a present. The grandmother consented. But instead of buying the son a present, Mrs. Haspel hurried to the interurban station and took the boy to her home in Terre Haute. Upon her arrival there she telephoned Mrs. Haspel and told her not to worry as the lad was with her and was all right.

Mrs. Haspel immediately went to Terre Haute and got policemen to accompany her to the home of Mrs. Haspel. The officer took the mother and son to the police headquarters but as the mother alleged that the child had not given the custody of the child to the father a settlement of the case was left until today, when the judge who granted the divorce will be appealed to by the grandmother in her attempt to again get possession of child. The divorce was granted in Terre Haute and the understanding is that Mr. Haspel had been given the custody of his children.

Mr. Haspel has married again and has his daughter with him. The son, however, has been here with its grandmother.

SERIOUS CHARGE AGAINST HOWARD

MAN WHO IS BEING RETURNED HERE FROM NORTH DAKOTA WILL BE TRIED ON CHARGE OF RAPE—IMPRISONMENT IN STATES PRISON THE PENALTY IF CONVICTED.

EXPECTED HOME TONIGHT

Thomas Howard, who was arrested in North Dakota, and who is being brought home by Sheriff Theodore Boes and Marshal John Cooper, will face a serious charge when arraigned before Judge Hughes. Two affidavits have been sworn out against Howard. One charges contributing to the delinquency of a 16-year-old girl, while the other charges rape.

The penalty, if convicted on the latter charge, means a term in the state prison. Ralph Boone, who also was arrested in North Dakota, will face a charge of wife desertion, which carries with it a penalty of imprisonment in the penitentiary. Sheriff Boes and Marshal Cooper and their prisoners are expected to arrive in Greencastle this afternoon or tonight.

A police call was sent to the officers this afternoon from residents of south Greencastle, who complained of the actions of a dog owned by George Tunget, alleging that it kept them awake all night and that on several different occasions had threatened to bite people. They want the dog killed. Policeman Maloney will investigate the matter tonight.

TWO NEW FACULTY MEMBERS CHOSEN

PRESIDENT GEORGE R. GROSE ANNOUNCES NEW ADDITIONS TO THE DePAUW TEACHING FORCE—BOTH COME FROM THE EAST.

OFFER WORK IN SPANISH

Announcement of two new members of the DePauw university faculty who will take their places at the beginning of the new school year was made this afternoon by Dr. George R. Grose, president of the local institution. Edwin Bryant Nichols, of New Haven, Conn., has been chosen as acting professor of Romance languages, and B. O. McAnney, of New York City, will be assistant in the departments of English Composition and Public Speaking.

Mr. Nichols, who comes to take the place of Miss Rose Laitem in the French department will also offer work in Spanish. Miss Laitem has resigned from DePauw to become a member of the faculty of the Cleveland, O., high school.

Mr. Nichols is a graduate of the Connecticut Wesleyan university, has received his masters degree from Harvard and has studied in Leipzig and Paris. He has taught for three years in the University of Maine, for two years in the University of Cincinnati, and for eight years in Kenyon College at Gambier, O., from which place he comes to DePauw. Announcement of the courses which Prof. Nichols will offer have not been made by local authorities as yet.

B. O. McAnney, of New York City, will come to take the place made vacant by the resignation of Instructor Eldie Troxell, assistant in English and debate. Mr. McAnney is a graduate of Dickinson College at Carlisle, Pa., and of the Pulitzer School of Journalism at Columbia university at New York City. At the latter place Mr. McAnney received the highest commendations for his work from Talcott Williams, director of the school. He is a brother of Lorraine McAnney, a junior in the university last year.

President Grose and other local college officials are exceedingly well pleased over their success in being able to add the names of Mr. Nichols and Mr. McAnney to the faculty roster. Investigation has shown that each is ably qualified to aid in maintaining the present high standard of work done here.

Whiteside, 6 feet 4 inches in height and weighing 225 pounds, one of the premier athletes of his time in Chicago University, will be at the head of all athletics for men at Earlham College during the coming year. Coach Whiteside has had two and a half years' experience in coaching, and was the champion heavyweight wrestler at Chicago University, where his specialties were football, water polo and wrestling. He will assist the faculty by teaching aside from his athletics.

The C. W. B. M. of the Christian Church will meet at the home of Mrs. L. G. Wright on west Walnut street Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The subject of the afternoon will be "The Study of Our Forms of Mission Work," by Mrs. Jesse Grogan.

Mrs. R. E. Richards and children, of Bainbridge, are here for a few days' visit with her parents, the Rev. and Mrs. D. L. Vandament.

READY TO BEGIN WORK ON WEST COLLEGE BUILDING

Work will be started not later than Thursday on the remodeling of the old West College building of DePauw university, according to a statement made this morning by Hubert Webster, who will have general supervision of the improvements. If all of the material arrives today in time to be unloaded and hauled to the campus the work will be begun tomorrow morning.

Beginning at a point middle ways of the south side of the building and extending about seventy-five feet around to the west side, the entire wall will be torn down and replaced by new material. This has been believed necessary because of these walls of the building having bulged outwards last year, thus rendering them very unsafe. This improvement will be the largest that will be made on the building, although several much needed repairs will be made on the interior.

The plan of tearing out the floor of the old academy chapel and constructing an auditorium and basketball floor has been given up by the college authorities. To have done this it would have been necessary to remove the bracing rods of the building and it was feared that the walls were not strong enough to withstand the strain. For a while it was also believed that the university would construct a frame building which could be used for basketball but this plan has also been abandoned. Since it will very likely be only another year until local students will have the advantage of a new gymnasium, it was felt that the expense would be too great in proportion to the time that the frame building could be used.

Rosa Gail is an American woman, who married an Italian. Her husband works at the O. & I. quarries, west of town. Mrs. Gail swore that the men came to her home on west Seminary street at about noon Monday and that each was intoxicated.

CITY WATER HAS VERY BAD TASTE

MANY COMPLAINTS HAVE BEEN MADE IN THE PAST FEW DAYS REGARDING THE CONDITION OF THE CITY WATER—MUDDY CONDITION SAID TO BE THE CAUSE.

WILL BE ALL RIGHT SOON

"What's the matter with the city water?" How many times in the past three days have you heard this question asked? Every one is wondering what causes the bad taste.

Some, at first, believed it was the ice that was causing the taste. "It tastes just like it had been running over straw," said one man. But there is no doubt that it is the water and not the ice, for several have tested it out. The water works people say that the cause of the queer taste to the water is the muddy condition of the creek. The hard rains of the past few days have caused the creek to raise and become very muddy. The water running off of the land into the creek following the drouth, is another cause that is given.

The water works people say, however, that the water in the creek will clear up in a few days and then the water will be all right.

THREE MEN ARE FINED AS RESULT OF A FIGHT.

Three farmers who reside near Fincastle were arraigned in Justice of Peace Phillip Frank's Court this morning and charged with assault and battery with intent to kill, as the result of a fight in which they participated several days ago. The charges were modified to assault and battery and all three men pleaded guilty to the charges and each was fined $1 and costs which amounted to $12.50. The fines were paid.

Thomas and the elder Dove had an argument at a stone crusher, which they were operating near Fincastle, and a fight resulted. Thomas was wielding a gas pipe on Dove when the son of Frank Dove hit Thomas in the head with a rock. A general mix-up in which clubs, rocks and other kinds of missiles were used was staged and all three of the men were injured.

Charges were filed against Dove and his son by Thomas in Squire Frank's Court Monday morning and they were arrested by Constable Crawley Monday afternoon. When arraigned in court this morning charges were filed against Thomas.

WOMEN'S WOES.

Greencastle Women Are Finding Relief at Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over, when to stand and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Keeping the kidneys well has spared thousands of women much misery. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. Belle Hinkle, 609 Illinois St., Greencastle, says: "Several years ago I suffered from sharp twinges through my loins. I felt tired all the time and had spells of dizziness. Reading of Loan's Kidney Pills, I used them and they brought me instant relief. My back is now strong and I feel better in every way."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Hinkle had. Roster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

COLLIE ADOPTS 2 LION'S CUBS

Foster Mother's Bark Serves, Through Its Novelty, to Subdue Orphans

WAS SLIGHTLY LEARY AT FIRST

"Nurse" is Only a Puppy Herself But Rules the Cage—Not a New Stunt to Place Dogs With Lion Cubs When Weaning Them.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Acting as nursery maid for a couple of husky young lions might not be regarded by some as exactly the softest berth on earth, but that is precisely what Kate is doing in the Highland Park zoo—and likes the job. But then Kate is a plain, no-account Scotch collie, and just naturally has to lead a dog's life whether she likes it or not.

Nevertheless, fussing around a pair of infants with such sure-enough had tempers as Emmeline and Gaby—they are her young charges—has its dangers. Also it has its compensations, for Kate is on the city payroll, at least to the extent of several bones a week, and they are the kind of bones that are the coin of the realm in Dogland.

If said young cubs only knew it they could give Kate a clout alongside of the map that would make her see whole oodles of dogcatchers. But they don't know it. She takes care of that. For like the Kate that Bill wrote about, the Highland Park Kate is a shrew. She's a superior with those youngsters as a poor, but honest governess is in a family of the newly rich. She bosses 'em around and makes them say "uncle" in Dogland.

That's Kate's trouble. And it's going to lose her her job. She has found her Petru bio in the person of Headkeeper Ernest Tretow.

"She barks too much noise," said Mr. Tretow yesterday, "I'll have to remove her from the animal house. Besides, she has served her purpose. Her presence in the cage with the young lions no longer is necessary."

And, of course, there is a reason why Kate has been kept with the cubs. Emmeline and Gaby were born on May 5 last. Their father is "General Cronle" and their mother is "Martha Washington," both among the biggest attractions in the zoo. After being left with their mother for five months, Mr. Tretow decided that it was time the cubs were weaned. Just to take the mother away and leave them to their own devices probably would have caused them to bibble 'most to death. So the headkeeper decided to insert Kate. Kate was only a puppy at the time—just a much more now. And in the matter of "bringing up the family" she has the character that Irene Franklin sings about, just plain pushed over the footlights.

For the first couple of days Gaby and Emmeline sat in a corner and gazed at the new arrival wondering what it was all about. Every now and then they crawled to the enclosure and took a closer survey. Then Kate barked and she had them on the hip. At that time the cubs couldn't get up even a respectable meow. And the barks that Kate let loose were a source of wonderment to them. Right on the spot they seemed to reach the conclusion that she would make a perfectly dandy playfellow.

Then Kate was let out into the cage with them and all three made common cause in growling at the keepers. Since then they have been fast friends, although from the first Kate has taken the whip hand and been boss of the shop. It is a daily sight for visitors to see the three in a rough and tumble party, but not once has Kate received even so much as a scratch.

The bark's the thing. The cubs never have gotten over that strange sound. Kate drives them at will by barking at their heels. And Kate spends most of her waking hours in barking.

The only time the three are not together is during feeding hours. It is not because of fear for the collie that Tretow does not allow them to get together. He does not want the dog to eat raw meat, which is the diet of the cubs, each consuming about 10 pounds daily.

Mr. Tretow explained that it was not new to place dogs with lion cubs. "It is the best way I know to wean a young lion," he said. "I have done it frequently, and always the cubs seemed to forget all about their mother through interest in the new arrival. There is no danger to the dog, and I would not hesitate to allow Kate to remain with the cubs for some time to come, were it not for her barking. She makes more fuss than all the rest of the animals in the zoo."

OUR NUTTY NOVELETTE

"Silence!" said the villain.
Or else I'll have your life!
If you cry or whimper,
You shall not be my wife."

Captain John Smith struggled stupidly to free himself from his fearsome fetters. (See Agnes Gook's "Capt. John Smith, His Life and Why.")

"Who is you dame?" he cried hoarsely, for though in danger of his very life, his well-known curiosity never forsook him. (See Obadiah Filpper's "The Smiths of Smithville and Their Ways.")

Through the primeval forest soft footsteps pattered and the daughter of Powhatan flung herself at the captive's feet, of which he had two. (See Elmore Spoozin's "The Feats of Capt. John Smith.")

"What an odd, peculiar, funny hat you are wearing," said Capt. Smith, pretending not to notice it.

"Yes," said Powhatan, with a short Indian laugh, "the girl never wears anything but that poke bonnet, so we call her pokebonnet."

"Ho, ha, ha!" laughed Capt. John Smith, and his sides shook so with laughter that his fetters split in twain (see footnote), and, finding himself a free man, he ran like anything.

POETRY WORTH READING

Lazarus.

"Remember that thou in thy life time receivest thy good things and likewise Lazarus evil things." Still he lingers, where wealth and fashion

Meet together to dine or play, Lingers, a matter of vague compassion, Out in the darkness across the way; Out beyond the warmth and the glitter.

And the light where luxury's laughter rings, Lazarus waits, where the wind is bitter, Receiving his evil things.

Still you find him, when, breathless, burning Summer flames upon square and street, When the fortunate ones of the earth are tuning

Their thoughts to meadows and meadow sweet; For far away from the wide green valley, And the bramble patch where the white throat sings,

Lazarus waits in his crowded alley, Receiving his evil things.

And all the time from a thousand rostrums Wise men preach upon him and his woes, Each with his bundle of noisy nostrums

Torn to tatters 'twixt ayes and nose; Sage and Socialist, gush and glamour, Yet little relief their wisdom brings, For there's nothing for him out of all the clamor.

Nothing but evil things. Royal commissions, creeds, convictions, Learnedly argue and write and speak, But the happy issue of his afflictions

Lazarus waits for it week by week. Still he seeks it to-day, to-morrow, In purposeless pavement wanderings, Or dreams it, a huddled heap of sorrow,

Receiving his evil things. And some will tell you of evolution With social science thereto; and some

Look forth to the parable's retribution; When the lot is changed in the life to come, To the trumpet sound and the great awaking,

To One with healing upon His wings, In the house of the many mansions making An end of the evil things.

In the name of Knowledge the race grows healthier, In the name of Freedom the work grows great, And men are wiser, and men are wealthier,

But—Lazarus lies at the rich man's gate, Lies as he lay through human history, Through fame of heroes and pomp of kings,

At the rich man's gate, an abiding mystery, Receiving his evil things.

The Unknowning. I know not where I am; Beneath my feet a whirling sphere And overhead (and yet below)

A crystal rampart cutting sheer— The travelling sun its irrefragable What do I know?

I know not what I do: I wrought at that, I wrought at this, The shuttle still perforce I throw; But if I might or if I miss

The web reveals not, held to view, What do I know? I know not what I think: My thoughts—As in a shaft of light

The dust motes wander to and fro, And shimmer golden in their flight; Then either way in darkness sink. What do I know?

I know not who am I: If now I enter on the Scheme, Or revertant from long ago, If but some World Soul's moment dream,

Or, timeless, in itself I lie, What do I know?

The Blue Shade. Ceiling and walls were colored like the sky

When sun born blues fade into twilight grays; And like cerulean seas of Sicily

The long floor gleamed where shone the pale moon's rays. But she who came from out the dark and stole

White clad across the threshold of the door Was like the milky lace of waves that roll

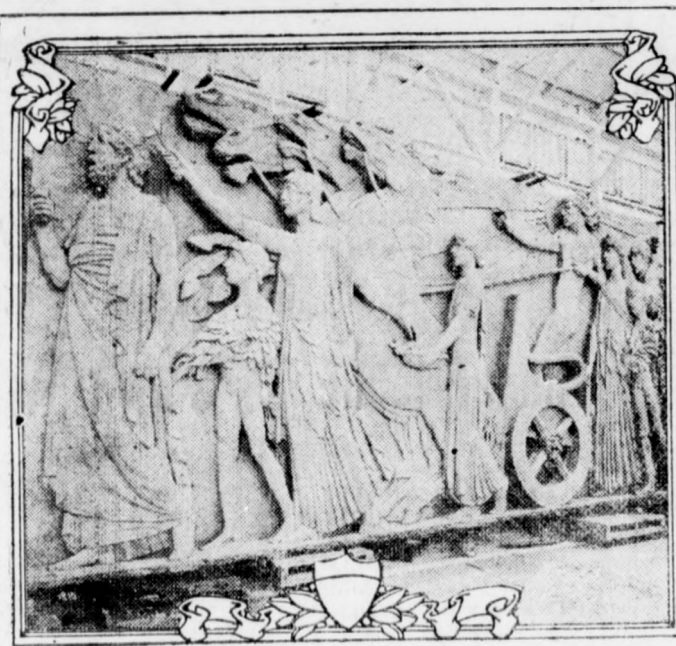

In tumbling regions on a rocky shore. Slowly she moved into the shadowed room

And paused before the open window, where She raised her hands to draw the dense blue gloom

Of billowed hangings that the wind stirred there; The curtains trembled and the room grew dim,

But ere the moon's last ray was lost to sight I saw the blue veined curve of breast and limb

Where clinging silk was pierced by envious light. James Bardin in Harper's Magazine

BIG OIL TANKS.

Largest Ever Built Now Under Construction by the Krupps.

The largest oil tank ship ever built and by far the largest ship yet planned to be driven by internal combustion motors, says Popular Mechanics, is to be constructed by the Krupps for the German-American Petroleum Company. The vessel will have a length of 525 feet, a breadth of 66 1/2 feet, a depth of 41 feet, and will have a loading capacity of about 15,000 tons. She will be driven by two 6 cylinder, 1,750 horse-power Krupp Diesel engines, which will give her an ocean speed of about ten miles an hour.

Two-thirds of the length of the vessel will be occupied by the tanks, which will be divided by transverse bulkhead into eleven compartments, which in their turn are separated into twenty tanks, partitions being made by a longitudinal bulkhead extending over the length whole.

Fought Mosquitoes With Fire Hose.

Officers of the British freighter Miguel de Larrinaga, from South America, reported an unusual and unpleasant experience while their vessel was at Calbarien, Cuba, where she called to land dried beef on her way north.

The vessel had hardly made fast when decks, cabins and staterooms were infested with big mosquitoes. Some temporary relief was had by getting out the big fire hose and wetting everything down thoroughly but the mosquitoes soon returned, and when the steamer sailed nearly every man on board bore huge welts, the marks of the insects. The thickest clothing was no protection.—Boston Globe.

HOW TO TAKE HORSE'S PULSE.

Place is at Underside of Jaw, Rolling Fingers Around Till Artery is Found.

The pulse is due to an automatic expansion and relaxation in the wall of an elastic tube—the artery—caused by the jets of blood pumped into those vessels by means of a force pump—the heart.

Each stroke of the heart is equal to one pulsation—viz, a rising and falling of the arterial wall. In health the average number of pulse beats per minute is about 26 to 40. The larger the horse the slower or fewer the number of beats per minute.

A very good place to take the pulse is at the underside of the jaw. By rolling the tips of the fingers about a little they can be brought on to the blood vessel.

Don't press too firmly, nor yet too lightly. The animal must be kept still and quiet. In point of importance the "character" of the pulse must be the best guide. That is to say, the blood vessel may impress us as feeling hard, soft, full, quick, small, wiry, regular or irregular.

These are niceties which require practice before they can be fully appreciated. In disease, pleurisy—the pulse will be found beating about 50 times per minute (depending upon the stage of the disease) hard, wiry and irregular.

In pulmonary apoplexy it may be beating 120 times per minute. When properly taken it forms a valuable means of a distance in ascertaining the nature and progress of disease.

A Thought For Today

Today I have got out of all trouble, or rather I have cast out all trouble, for it was not outside, but within and in my opinion.

—M. Antonius.

Arrested for Sneezing.

The most silent town in Europe is (or rather was until recently) not Bruges apparently, but Driesen-Vordamm in Brandenburg. Here the municipal regulation with regard to street noises are so strict that a visitor was fined five marks for sneezing out of doors. The stranger refused to pay, and though assured that this small fee saved him from the properly deserved punishment of prison, he remained unmoved by the expression of generosity and preferred to argue the matter out in the local courts. He was eventually acquitted, but since the verdict the head of the police of Driesen-Vordamm refuses to answer for order in the streets of that locality.—Queen.

Flank Steak.

The flank contains a broad flat muscle known as the flank steak, which is a very desirable piece of meat if taken from a well fattened animal. There is no waste to it whatsoever. It is coarse in fibre, but very rich in flavor, and if carefully prepared is a very choice cut. In thin cattle the flank steak is not usually removed, the flank being made into rolled roasts or sold for stews. A rolled roast of the hind flank is one of the most economical cuts in the whole animal. It is good to eat, is cheap and contains no bone.—National Provisioner.

A Luxurious Prison.

Japan can boast of the most luxurious prison in the world. It is about fifteen miles from Tokyo. In the midst of gardens where flourish medlars and cherry trees, enclosed with ponds bearing fine crops of water lilies, rises the mass of spacious and airy cells. Lighting throughout is by electricity. Among other features are bathrooms with marble baths, hot and cold water, dressing rooms and reading rooms.

Heart of London.

The city of London proper, which lies in the heart of Greater London, has a living population of but 35,000 by night, although 300,000 people do business there by day, while all the currents of British life pass through its portals. Here is the soul of the empire, with its population of 400,000,000, and its area of 11,400,000 square miles, or more than one-fifth of the population and area of the globe.—Scribner's.

Wot's Atheists?

Birmingham, England, was the home of prize fighting when the ring was patronized by literature and royalty. There was Bendigo, who became an enemy to all unrighteousness. "Wot's atheists?" he asked one, on being told that a gathering of men he saw were of that persuasion. He was told, "Don't believe in no God, don't they?" he shouted, "Here, hold my coat, I'll soon show 'em wot's wot!"

Stop Treating.

The members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union in Wisconsin received congratulations from almost every country on the globe because of their success in getting the faculty and students of the State university to sign an agreement whereby they pledged themselves to stop treating to intoxicant liquors. There are said to have been nearly four thousand signatures.

Escaping the Moles.

Little gophers and moles are the cause of endless trouble for the Southern Pacific company, and continual expense, especially in the Willamette valley where the land is rich and the gophers like to live and dig. Foreman Strawn is raising portions of the track near Eugene an inch to two inches, and other section foremen have to do the same in other sections.—Eugene (Ore.) Guardian.

After all isn't race prejudice about as admirable and as defensible a thing as the silly sentiment that calls any male being on two legs a brother?

HUMOR OF THE HOUR

THE POWER OF A VOICE.

Bad Tempered Husband Completely Changed by Sweet, Low Tones.

When you live in hotels a great deal, as have I more or less, you realize the power of the human voice to soothe, or quite the opposite.

Oh, what a lot of harsh, disagreeable voices there are in this world—women's voices, too! The pity of it!

One morning I was on the beach at the bathing house when I heard someone call "Tommy!" indiscreet tones that set my nerves a tingle with their acid sharpness. The child so called frowned and answered back in a peevish way.

I turned, expecting to see some uncouth nursemaid, and to my surprise I beheld the extremely elegant mother of the little boy.

Now, that woman's husband is always irritable and peevish, just like the boy, and who shall say her voice is not responsible for it?

One of the worst-tempered men I know married a woman with a sweet, low voice and an even disposition. He is now completely changed. You know you simply can't quarrel all by yourself when everything is peaceful and soothing all around you. It seems to me if more women realized this there would be more happy homes.—Kate Clyde.

Slim Chances for Her.

A missionary who was making his way through a backwoods region came upon an old woman sitting outside a cabin. He entered upon a religious talk and finally asked her if she didn't know there was a day of judgment coming.

"Why, no," said the old lady. "I hadn't heard of that. Won't there be more'n one day?"

"No, my friend; only one day," was the reply.

"Well, then," she mused, "I don't reckon I can get to go for we're only got one mule, and John always has to go everywhere first."—Nathan Monthly.

Use of Cosmetics.

Apologies of the extravagant use of cosmetics, a witticism is credited to Reginald Vanderbilt.

A lady said to Mr. Vanderbilt at one of the "comet" suppers: "There are the three Van Twillier girls."

"Are they all three still unmarried?" Mr. Vanderbilt asked.

"Yes," said the lady. "They're rich and pretty, too. It's odd they don't go off."

"Isn't it?" said Mr. Vanderbilt. "They use enough powder."—Minneapolis Journal.

Engagement Ring to Wedding Ring.

"What! Marry an old mercenary chap like you? Give up my freedom, my winter crushes and my summer flirtations? How dare you presume upon my friendship! You are absolutely selfish; certainly yours cannot be the higher love."—Browning's Magazine.

Her Claim.

Mrs. Gillet—So there is a tablet in your transept to her memory. Did she do anything to bring people into the church?

Mrs. Perry—Well, I guess! She wore a new hat every Sunday for three years.—Harper's Bazar.

Pitchers Will Be Pitchers.

Mr. Balfan (immersed in the game, fiercely)—If that pitcher would only settle down!

Mrs. Balfan (inexpressibly shocked)—Dear me! You don't tell me! Is he as wild as all that, George?

Matter of Economy.

Mildred—They were married in haste, I understand?

Eleanor—Yes. They had engaged a taxicab by the hour, so they requested the minister to hurry.—News.

"Your wife's a judge of human nature, isn't she?"

"Judge! She's a prosecuting attorney!"—Cleveland Leader.

The average woman worries more about the furnace than her husband does about the hereafter.

Not So Strange After All.

You may think it strange that a many people are cured of stomach trouble by Chamberlain's Tablets. You would not, however, if you should give them a trial. They strengthen and invigorate the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. Mrs. Rosie Rish, Wash, Ind., writes, "Nothing did me the least good until I began using Chamberlain's Tablets. It is decidedly the best medicine for stomach trouble I have ever used." For sale by all dealers.

A COAL MINE MAP.

This One Shows Location, Ownership and Production of All the Mines.

John W. Boileau, the expert on coal mining, has in his Pittsburg offices one of the most expensive maps in existence. It is not very large, but the work of collecting material for the map has taken more than a score of years and the work involved has cost Mr. Boileau thousands of dollars. He values his map, it is said, at $25,000.

The map shows the location of every coal mine in the United States and who owns each mine. Besides this data the map gives the quality of the coal produced at the mine and the quantity as well. Mr. Boileau and his assistants keep the map up to date and see to it that every newest piece of information from authentic sources that comes into his office is indicated on the map. Some of the data shown on the map were easy to secure, but other facts required hard digging and sometimes journeys to the places themselves. There are stories and incidents connected with the collection of this information that might furnish material for many interesting articles. —New York Sun.

An Ancient Church Custom.

At the Parish Church, Chard, Somerset, at the conclusion of the hymn before the sermon, Prebendary Farrer remained standing at the entrance to the chancel while a sergeant of police marched through the centre aisle carrying one of the curious old borough maces and an official looking document, which he duly presented to the vicar, and without waiting for it to be opened returned to the west entrance. The vicar then entered the pulpit, opened the envelope, read the contents to himself and proceeded with the sermon. This document was the official notification given to the vicar that the town council had elected a churchwarden for the ensuing year—a privilege which, according to an ancient custom, the council possess. —London Daily Mail.

Ancient Buildings Imperilled by Ants.

The Castle of Wakayama has been found to be in a state of ruin due to the attacks of African white ants. The main supporting pillars have been entirely hollowed out by the insects. On examination it has been discovered that the barracks in Awaiki and the Miyama fortresses in the Kii district are also being ruined by these harmful insects.

The Military Department has dispatched an expert to undertake the extermination of the pests. He says that should the authorities fail in exterminating the insects all the fortresses along the Kii and Awaiki waters will be ruined, and should the insects once reach Koto, the temples and other ancient buildings would be lost in a few years. —Japan Advertiser.

What Coal Mining Costs in Lives.

It is estimated by those who have followed the annals of coal mining that the production of 514,392,000 short tons of anthracite and bituminous coal in 1911 involved the loss of 3,951 lives in twenty-one States and provinces of the United States and Canada. The loss of life exceeded that for the year previous by 26.23 per cent. The fatality for 1911 was 4.18 per 1,000 persons employed.

Ancient Manuscript Found.

A Berlin museum has recently acquired a very valuable manuscript which originated in the second century B. C. It seems to be of the nature of a biographical dictionary, for it contains a list of the leading men of the time in art, statesmanship and warfare with much other general information of a similar nature. The paper was found in the wrappings of a mummy.

Pet Bear Shipped.

Leon Flint, of Norway, has sold his pet bear to people living in West Virginia. The shipping crate bore the words: "My name is Jennie. I have been in captivity since I was a year old and am quite tame. Please give me a drink." It was shipped by the Canadian Express, and needless to say will be taken care of. —Lewis (Me.) Journal.

Number of Ministers.

The Catholics have 16,255 clergymen, three thousand more than the number of their churches. The Protestants have only 149,472 ministers, or 59,559 less than the number of their churches. This number of churches must either be without pastors or divide a man's time. —Dellmeator.

Servant Problem.

Housewives in Australia are wrestling with the servant problem. Their advertisements make interesting reading. One offers "plenty of outings," another throws out the bait of "Sundays free," while a third one goes better with "Saturday afternoons and Sundays off."

Shipped Frozen Carcasses.

Nearly 5,000 frozen carcasses of pigs, sent all the way from Hankow, in China, for consumption in England, passed the inspection of the port of London sanitary authority at Deptford. The pigs are only a part of a consignment including beef, poultry, deer, game and eggs.

THE Hawkinses had just sat down to the evening meal, tired of waiting for Myrtle, their eldest daughter, who was the main attraction at the ribbon counter of a certain department store, when they heard the door slam. "There she is at last, the poor dear," said Mrs. Hawkins, as Myrtle, her eyes flashing fire, swept into the room. "It's a outrage," began Myrtle, carefully placing her chewing-gum beneath her chair and reaching for the chocolate russe; "somebody ought to be done 't' these trolley-car conductors. The fresh ginks think they can do anything 'an' git away with it. If I had my way I'd—"

"Whassa matter now?" asked Johnny Hawkins, Myrtle's little brother, with his mouth full of potatoes.

"Shut up, you!" said Myrtle, elegantly. "Say, maw, it's a wonder you wouldn't keep that kid quiet 'an' give somebody else a chanet 't' talk."

"If you say another word you leave this table 'an' go to bed without a bite to eat," said Mrs. Hawkins to Johnny. The latter subsided, and Myrtle resumed:

"As I wuz sayin', I got on the car at Fourth Street, 'an' I hadn't rode two blocks 'fore the conductor—a freshish-looking guy with a Adam's apple 't' size of a orange right in the middle of his throat—comes up 'an' says, 'fresh-like, 'FARL, please!' 'Yu don't needa be in 'uh hurry.' I sez, 'an' with that I reaches into me portmonee—"

"Yer what?" asked Mr. Hawkins. "I wisht yu wouldn't interrupt, pa," said Myrtle peevishly. "Can't yu never let nobody finish nothin'?"

Receiving no reply, she decided he could or could not, as the case might be, and continued:

"Anyhow I hands him a dollar-bill, not havin' anything smaller. Is that all yu got?" sez he. "What's it yare business whether it is or not?" sez I. "Yuh wouldn't have that much if yu give the company a square deal. That kinda floored 'im. I thought it would. He jist shut right up. Then he fishes through his pockets 'an' sez: 'I sh'n't got no change fer this now. Give it t' yu later.' 'Mind yu do,' sez I, 'an' he walked back to the platform."

"Well, it wuz gettin' right near ah street 'an' he hadn't said nothin' 'bout change, so I up 'an' ast him fer it. 'Yu didn't gimme no dollar,' he tries to tell me. 'Yuh're another,' I sez, quick; 'don't yu try t' pull nothin' like that on me or I'll give yu a slap in th' face.' Then we had it hot 'an' heavy fer ten minutes. He said he didn't get no dollar from me, 'an' I expostulated—"

"Yu what?" asked Mr. Hawkins. "Aw, never mind, paw," said Myrtle soothingly.

"Finally, he points out a woman up in th' front of th' car, and sez: 'I give that woman change fer uh dollar. I thought it was her gimme it.' 'Uh course, I feel relieved. 'Well, go git it,' I sez to 'im, 'an' would yu b'lieve it, he wouldn't ast that woman fer that change! 'Go git it yerself,' he sez. We scraped about it all the way to ah street, 'an' at last I got mad 'an' I sez: 'Ill go git that change meself.'"

"So I walks up to the woman and sez: 'Madam, th' conductor give yu my change fer a dollar be mistake. I'll take it, thank yu.' 'Not much, yu won't sez she. 'Do yu mean t' say yu won't gimme that change?' I asks her. 'Yuh're right,' sez she. 'The conductor gimme it 'an' I'm going t' keep it. What's mine's me own.'"

"Why'n't yu call a cop?" suggested Mr. Hawkins, now very much interested. "I wouldn't 'a' stood for any deal like that."

"Yuh're a man, 'an' I aint," was Myrtle's crushing rejoinder. "Didn't yu get yer change, dearie?" asked Mrs. Hawkins anxiously.

"I'm a-comin' t' that, maw," said Myrtle, with admirable patience, "if yu'll only shut up fer a few minutes. I stood a-talkin' t' that woman fer two more blocks, 'an' I couldn't do a thing with 'er. So I got desprit, 'an' I jist snatched one of 'er bundles. She yells like a pup 'an' th' conductor comes a-mina. So I takes a chanet 'an' jumps a th' car, 'an' it goin a mile a minute!"

"Bully fer yu, sis!" Johnny burst out. "Did yu git away with it? Did she chase yer? Did she call a cop? I'll betchu ran like h— I mean the dickens!" Snack!

"Take that," said Mr. Hawkins firmly, as Johnny staggered into a corner from a slap in the face. "Spare th' rod 'an' spoil th' child," he quoted glaring at Johnny. "Now, me gurl, tell us th' rest o' that."

"That's all there is to it," said Myrtle. "She wouldn't gimme me money, so I snatched her package."

"Sure," said Mr. Hawkins in one breath; "but what wuz in th' package?" Myrtle arose, shook out her skirts, languidly stretched herself, fixed her hair back, and edged toward the door. "What wuz in that package?" yelled Mr. Hawkins.

"Hot air," said Myrtle, as she slammed the door and ran rapidly up the stairs.

Lonesome.

"Are you denying yourself anything this Lent, Bobby?" asked Winkleton. "Yes," said Bobby. "I am denying myself to my creditors. Shan't see anybody I owe for six weeks."

"Gosh—you'll be lonesome, won't yu?" said Winkleton.

to a carpet, "yuh're safe. Cuk-calm yourself."

"Appleton, the police—quick!" gasped Mrs. Pipkin. "Wretch! If yu have killed him—"

A mastery by mail of Jui Jitsu, J. Appleton Pipkin numbered not among his accomplishments, but by wiggles, Japanese in their deftness, he managed to free himself. Strange to say, there was no pursuit. Only silence, deep and uncanny.

Mr. Pipkin found a match, finally struck it and lit the gas. Mrs. Pipkin, the picture of bewilderment, sat upon the floor and rubbed her eyes.

"What has happened?" she asked blankly. "What is it?" "Nothing, my dear," Mr. Pipkin purred, with admirable control. "It's all right, right as a rivet. Yuh took me for a burglar, that's all, jumped on me in the dark and almost—"

"I remember now," said Mrs. Pipkin, resting her elbow on a handy taboret. "I was dreaming and I heard a man's voice threatening yu and then I heard yu fall—"

"I didn't fall, my dear," said Mr. Pipkin. "Yuh didn't fall?"

"No; it was the jardiniere and palm."

"But he threatened yu—"

"He didn't, because he—whoever he is—wasn't here. Yuh heard them rehearsing down stairs—through the air shaft window, yu know."

"And I assailed yu, Mr. Pipkin?"

"Yuh did," said Mr. Pipkin. "I am willing to swear to it."

"Thank Heaven, then, it was yu and not a burglar," cried Mrs. Pipkin, rising. "I saw, or dreamt I saw—I don't know which—a bulk in the dark and—Don't stand there like an imbecile, rubbing yur arm, but get me the smelling salts."

"I—one hundred and twenty-one pounds—looked like a bulk in the dark," quoth Mr. Pipkin to himself. "She must have been dreaming. My dear," he said aloud, with attempted playfulness, "here are the smelling salts, but if I were yu, I don't think I should agitate myself much over what might have been. In fact, speaking from knowledge lately acquired, my sympathies would be largely with the burglar."

"Listen!" was Mrs. Pipkin's only response. There was a silent noise, a persistent scratching in the dark of the rear hall.

"It's that mouse," she quavered, he's gnawing again. I shall certainly go mad!"

Two days later, among its thousands upon thousands of missives, letters of love, of gossip, of business and of bluff, the P. O. handled this one, brief but sufficient:

Dearest Daughter:—I received your letter this evening and wrote at once. Yuh poor child, yu! Such an experience. If yu like, yu and Appleton may have the second floor front and the hall room off, and may move in as soon as yu ever want to. It will seem like old times to have yu home again. But really, yu ought to see Dr. Bismuth about your nerves. Yuh will, won't yu? Perhaps, after all it is best for yu to live alone until yu are stronger.

Lovingly,
MOTHER.

"Precisely," said Mr. Pipkin, when the letter was read to him. "It will be time enough when yu are stronger."

INDULGENCE

At Four Years.
She wanted lots of candy. The precious little pet! And what the darling wanted she surely ought to get! If cookies, pies, and coffee, Or sugar-plums, in force; And it ruined her digestion, Of course.

At Six Years.
She wanted toys and dollies, Or something else instead. She wouldn't eat her porridge, And wouldn't go to bed! She fought, and won the battle, And screamed till she was hoarse; And spoiled her disposition, Of course!

At Sixteen.
She wanted to be pretty, A sort of fluffy dresden, She lived on cake and pickles, A dainty, precious team! She loathed fresh air, and walking, And work, and all that's coarse; And she ruined her complexion, Of course!

At Seventeen.
She wanted shows, and novels, And everything that's gay, A lazy life, and easy, With only fun and play, And in the race with Mother She rode the winning horse; And she clipped her education, Of course!

At Eighteen.
She wanted to get married, Her heart was all aflame, The man was quite unworthy, She loved him just the same. She thought she did, the baby! And Father must endorse; And she spoiled her life forever, Of course!

The inset vest is made of tuckered linen lawn, closed with small jet buttons and wristlets of the same lawn finish out the sleeves. Black satin is used for facings.

The trouble is that after a woman is married she begins to confuse the role of guardian angel with that of detective.

When a young woman spends money freely, two choruses go up: One in the voices of young women, "How generous!" and one in the voices of old women, "How foolish!"

When a woman has an undruggable guest, she can take her medicine with a more pleased expression than anybody else on earth.

The trouble is that no one ever tells a woman the truth but her husband, and she thinks he can't speak it.

HUMOR of the DAY
Enjoyed it.

Wigwag—Have you been enjoying your seashore cottage this summer? Closest—Yes, indeed. I rented it for the season for almost as much as it cost altogether, and I've been staying at home.

Plenty of Time.
"Papa, I want an ice cream sundae." "All right, dear, remind me of it again; this is only Tuesday."

His Later Resolve.
"Huggins, didn't you tell me you were going to resign your job as traveling man for Spotsch & Co. next January?"

"I think I did, Snoodle, but I've just had a confidential talk with the boss himself and I find—er—I'm going to resign next Saturday."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

EGG SAUCE.
The quickest and easiest possible egg sauce is made of two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, one cup milk, one egg and one-quarter teaspoon salt and pepper.

VALUE OF BRAN.
Bran filled into cheesecloth bags is excellent for cleaning wall paper. It is also better than soap for the bathtub and for the neck, face and hands nothing is better. It is as cleansing for clothes as for the body. Boiled and the water used the same as soap suds. It is as satisfactory for delicate fabrics as soap and does not injure the color.

SIMPLE MARSHMALLOW.
Cut one pound marshmallows into small pieces, mix with large cup seeded raisins chopped, and one pint whipped cream, slightly sweetened and flavored to taste. Place on ice until very cold and garnish with cherries.

A Glorious Victory.

After having been challenged three times to come to Cloverdale to play a game of ball, the Belle Union Baseball Club decided to accept the challenge. With the same spirit which has always characterized the Belle Union ball fans, they went to the field of battle on Martin's Park, the home ground of the Cloverdale team, on Friday, August 7, determined to win.

Although the Cloverdale fans had done a great deal of talking before the appointed date arrived, on the afternoon of the great event, when automobile load after load from old Belle Union began to crowd the streets of the much-boasted town, the spirit seemed to wane and the feathers began to fall, and the result could almost be read in the faces of Foster, Rockwell and others.

Well, after the boys had warmed up a little, Umpire Jones called the game, and the fight was on, with Blue and Blue as battery for Belle Union and Evans and Preston as battery for Cloverdale. In the first inning the boys broke even with one score apiece. In the second inning Cloverdale made two and Belle Union one. This encouraged the Cloverdale fans enough that they were tempted to talk a little.

In the third inning there was nothing done on either side.

In the fourth the balloon went up. Everybody hit the ball. Mr. Slinger went wild and Mr. Catcher got terribly excited, and the result was that Belle Union ran in five scores. Of course it was too bad, but every one, from this time, could see the finger of victory pointing straight to the old B. U. stand.

The game was played the full nine innings but we noticed that as it was nearing the close the professional fans took their little folding chairs under their arms and departed from the scene, not wanting to hear the final knell rung.

The game was a fight between two pitchers, and the result of the game was a result of the battle between the pitchers. Blue fanned thirteen of the Cloverdale boys, put out two unassisted, and threw out three at first. This is a record to be proud of.

The game closed with a score of 9 to 5, and Belle Union returned, as usual, with the old banner of victory floating high in the evening breezes, ready to return the game on their home grounds at any time.

SERVICE AND OPPORTUNITY.

He who confers the greatest service at the least expense is the man crowned with honor and success. Righteous service to mankind links the higher nature of man to the Infinite. Such is the service of the Spaulhurst Osteopaths which is evidenced by kindly expressions from those who have been the recipients of their treatment and regard their benefactors.

As a simple science, osteopathy stands a problem of profound interest; as an applied science, its uses and benefactions to humanity are incalculable. It is a workable, successful system of manual treatment founded upon the laws of Nature, which is universal in its application to the betterment and well being of afflicted mankind.

To give to mankind the better way—the Osteopathic way—is indeed a blessing. It is the object of the Spaulhurst Osteopaths to share these blessings as far as they may with all who are handicapped with ill-health, and have the foresight to grasp the opportunity that Osteopathy provides for them to get well and stay well. Opportunity invites but never drags anyone. You must meet it half way. When you want milk do you sit down in the pasture and wait for the cow to back up? To the end that we may know and serve you better we are telling you of the generous and good gifts that come from the proper application of Osteopathy. It aids Nature to stem the forces making for death and to strengthen those making for life.

Success turns on ability to "deliver the goods." The Spaulhurst Osteopaths make good every promise and give more satisfaction than is expected. If you will investigate with your mind fixed on your own advantage, you will quickly see why you should grasp this opportunity to rid yourself of ill-health, without drugs, and here at home under the most favorable circumstances.

SOLIDLY ORGANIZED IS DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 11.—

With four exceptions all of the counties in the state have held their conventions and have their county tickets in the field. The counties that have not yet held their conventions will do so at an early day. LaPorte will choose its county ticket Aug. 20, Carroll county Aug. 22, and Shelby county on Aug. 18. Ohio county is the only one in the state that has not set the date for its convention, but it will not long delay getting its ticket in the field.

Sounds pretty good for Democratic organization, eh?

As a matter of fact the whole party in Indiana is up and doing. Never before have we presented a more solid front to the enemy—never have Democrats gone to work with such enthusiasm.

The very air is charged with electric success sparks. Now when men go out to work in that spirit they are invincible.

But of course it all comes back to the fact that the Democratic party is absolutely united, that it stands solidly behind President Woodrow Wilson, who is one of the greatest presidents this country has ever known. It is united because it has before it here at home the inspiration of the splendid administration of Governor Ralston.

Now men do not organize and work as one man unless they have the incentive of a great cause. They know that such party leaders as Woodrow Wilson and Samuel Ralston are working for their country and for humanity and the Democrats are lining up to stand shoulder to shoulder with them.

That the people of all of the counties are vastly interested is shown by the early conventions—it is remarkable that practically the whole state should have its entire ticket, from the state officers down to the littlest township ticket, already in the field.

That can mean but one thing—that the whole state is aroused and determined to carry things by storm. Never before has the party suffered from such a conspiracy of misrepresentation as the Republican party has engaged in this year and Democrats are showing their resentment by rising in overwhelming night.

Indiana has never had a fairer, more business-like administration than Governor Ralston is giving, and fair-minded Republicans, as a matter of simple honesty, admit their admiration for the Governor. Even the worst enemies acknowledge that his handling of the flood and street car strike situations was masterly.

Supported by a Democratic Legislature the administration has given the state many reforms that are operating to increased business efficiency and saving money for the state.

Nevertheless, Democratic policies, which have admittedly insured to the people of the state the best government they have lived under for a quarter of a century, which has given the state a genuine business administration and reformed the slipshod methods of finance practiced by successive Republican regimes, are being grossly and unfairly attacked.

What wonder then that Democrats should feel a bit peeved, to say the least, and by presenting a solidly organized front, punish their traducees with the most effective means ever placed in the hands of man—the ballot box.
